Galicia, a region located in the northwest of Spain, has a population of 2.7 million and an autonomous government, the Xunta de Galicia, with specific powers in the audiovisual sector.

The Xunta de Galicia has an annual economic program to support the development, production and co-production of audiovisual projects in different formats.

In addition, it has a competitive system of incentives for production and audiovisual services for projects that are shot in Galicia.

Thanks to its magnificent landscape and the competence of its professionals, Galicia is the setting chosen for major international co-productions and great successes in Spanish cinema.

Besides, we boast successful content promoted by television channels and international platforms, with excellent results in both fiction and documentary genres.

FILMS

FROM GALICIA

Galicia is in a very favorable position to receive future investments and consolidate itself as a benchmark in the Spanish and European audiovisual sector. This is due not only to the existing industrial sector, but also to the talent of producers, creators, technicians and actors.

But our heritage does not end there: we have unique and impressive landscapes, from mountains and rivers to hundreds of kilometers of coastline, and exceptional cultural and architectural wealth.

All this drives us to look for new opportunities and challenges around the world, new screens for our productions and the opportunity to open up and discover new ways of filming.

Would you accept being judged by an AI?

The government announces a referendum to approve an Artificial Intelligence system in the Administration of Justice that promises to automate and depoliticise it by replacing, in practice, the judges in the country's courts. The referendum unleashes a fierce electoral campaign in which the government, allied with the technology that created the system, and the judiciary, which defends the human nature of justice, are at loggerheads. Carmen Costa, a renowned judge, is invited to work on the development of the project, but the sudden disappearance of Alicia Kóvack, the creator of the system, causes her great distrust, to the point where she realises that she is discovering the tip of the iceberg of a conspiracy that aims to control an entire country from within the justice system.

A story of laughable law breakers.

Diogo and Mati look at each other puzzled, standing at either end of the Tui-Valenca International Bridge. In the middle lies a dead body. Two years have passed since Alicia Zamora was arrested along with her Portuguese partner, Viriato Oliveria. Much has changed, Mati and Diogo are now dating, Eduardo has paid his debt. The brothers-in-law have opened a business to launder the remaining money. But the previous week... News spreads that Zamora's lawyer has been released from prison. Andreia Nunes, Viriato Oliveira's girlfriend, is determined to recover the money lost during the arrest and goes to Ourense. Following a hint, she ends up at a vineyard. When mishap meets misfortune Andreia ends up dead on the wine cellar floor. In panic, the in-laws decide to take the corpse back to Portugal, but accidentally... lose the body on the International Bridge. Our brothers-in-law are in a tight spot when the police in charge of the investigation are also part of the family.

In order to enter and leave La Parra, there is only one door that we cannot access with our eyes.

Damián takes part in a television contest in which literal quotes are rewarded. They have put his name on his shirt. When the programme goes to commercials, the story begins: Once upon a time there was a middle-aged man living a precarious life in a big city. When he receives the news that his father has died, he has to return to Ferrol, his hometown. After more than twenty years away, Ferrol has become an all-encompassing ruin.

In the cold autumn of 1945, the survivors from a battalion of resistance fighters flee to the Pyrenees, trying to escape the Francoist army. Our protagonists are a group of romantics, dim-wits and idealists. Their lack of any tactical ability and a cruel twist of fate lead them to take a post office by force in a forgotten village: Black Eagles. The taking of the post office and, later, its provisions, are just the prelude to the terrible events that lie ahead. As was to be expected, the army doesn't take long to catch up with them, but... there's an even greater threat lurking in the shadows: Miss Remedios Buendía. Remedios is an all-powerful woman from the village, the epitome of Catholicism and national patriotism and she is not about to let this gang of rebels get their own way.

2002. Ivan is a Belgian courier: he works moving Spanish dirty money to other countries. But he has ambition for much more and the talent to achieve it.

The year 2002. Spain joins the euro. It is a time of opportunities, for the clever. Like Iván, a kid from Vallecas who has outgrown his neighbourhood. From his job as a valet at a luxurious golf club in the capital, he will soon take his first big step: becoming a Belgian courier for an international money-laundering organisation. Ivan will start transporting suitcases to Brussels and Geneva. But Ivan can't keep his eyes off the top. The real black money is flowing on the Costa del Sol. Construction businessmen, corrupt politicians, bankers, sportsmen, the Chinese mafia... Ivan wants his share of the cake. This is the story of a young man who had nothing and dared to have it all. Until it all exploded.

While his son is waiting for an urgent transplant, Pablo, a sniper by profession, makes a mistake that will force him to make impossible decisions.

Sergio has a serious gambling problem. After swearing to his wife that he would never gamble again, he receives a tip-off about a supposedly rigged football match and, unable to keep his promise, he returns to the betting shop with the intention of recovering all the money he has lost. The tip turns out to be true and his luck is finally going to change... but Alejo, who also has a gambling past, bursts into the place with a gun. Pablo, a GEO sniper, is pressured by Commissioner Costa to take part in the robbery. But the GEO's head is elsewhere, in the hospital, where his son's life hangs in the balance. As fate would have it, Sergio and Pablo find themselves involved in a robbery of a betting shop, where a gunshot will change their lives forever.

From the Buddhist temples of Laos to the seaweed farms of Zanzibar, through the bardo in an experience of light and sound.

Samsara is the Buddhist cycle of death and reincarnation. From the temples of Laos, living with adolescent monks, we accompany a soul in its transit from one body to another, through the bardo. The words of the Tibetan Book of the Dead guide us here so that we don't get lost in the beyond. A luminous and sonorous journey that will lead us to reincarnate on the beaches of Zanzibar, where groups of women work on seaweed farms.

A woman discovers love when she picks up a stray dog. This event leads her to identify the cause of her permanent dissatisfaction with life.

In Santiago de Compostela, Soledad, on the day of her 45th birthday, picks up a stray dog and realises that those who love do not hurt. At the same time and unexpectedly, her life changes when her grandmother Justa orders her to take care of her uncle Cándido, with whom she shares a secret from the past; a situation that leads her to recognise the cause of her dissatisfaction with life and she decides to carry out a transcendental act for her and her family.

The medical, human, good and generous Castelao lives in the Castelao committed to Galicia. All are one.

The first fiction film about Castelao, which will be shot in the very places Daniel Castelao lived: Pontevedra, Santiago, Rianxo and Brittany, deals with apparently minor moments, but which in fact bring together all of Castelao's roles: the doctor, the humanist, the politician, the journalist or the illustrator. This project seeks to get closer to the person than the celebrity and has centred on two specific moments in his life: when he joined the Galician militancy, taking part in the 1918 Irmandades da Fala Assembly; and when, with the arrival of the Republic, he devoted all his efforts to political life.

Galician actor Tamar Novas will play Castelao in a film about the writer. Gabriel Muñoz – QUINCEMIL

Leo and Lou aren't friends. They don't even know each other, but they are going to set out on a journey on which they will discover the significance of the word "family".

The lives of two seemingly opposite people are changed forever when their paths cross. Leo, is an orphan and mute kid, but she has no problem communicating with others in her own way. Her problem is that she doesn't fit in anywhere. Equipped with her old fishing rod, Leo runs away from the orphanage with her heart set on going to a fishing competition that reminds her of her late family. On the other hand, Lou is a rough man, what we usually call "a rebel without a cause" who seems unable to make it in society. He has trouble connecting with other people and makes a living at low-level jobs. At an unexpected moment his path crosses Leo's. Their journey begins when Lou agrees to take her to the coastal town where the fishing tournament is being held, tricking Leo into believing that he is taking her back home. Along the way both of them will learn that, at times, getting lost is the best way to truly find yourself.

The power of facing your inner fears and living with the unknown.

Amidst the constant hustle and bustle and the oppressive routine, boredom takes root in Bonio's heart as he immerses himself in the monotony of the city. Bonio's soul longs for a breath of fresh air, an escape from uniformity. One day Bonio arrives at an isolated house in the wilderness and moves in. In the solitary stillness of his abode, Bonio finds himself trapped in self-imposed isolation. However, in the shadows of the night, a mysterious monster begins to visit him, unleashing a whirlwind of emotions and fears he thought he had buried deep within himself.

The extraordinary woman hidden behind the cultural myth about Rosalía de Castro.

After a childhood pursued by shadows of illegitimacy, Rosalía reached her youth integrated in the cultural environment of Santiago, but the shadows remained latent in her inner world. The suicide of her admirer Aguirre fills her heart with sadness after she begins a love affair with Manuel Murguía. Her love establishes a precarious balance but Rosalía's poor health forces her to return to Galicia, where her mother also dies. Aguirre and her mother meet the ghost of the priest in Rosalía's inner world. She tries to raise her children, but the duties of a mother prevent her from developing her work. Her marriage is getting worse and worse. Finally, her last daughter, Valentina, is stillborn. When hope seems lost, she gets cancer. But it is at that moment when she discovers her strength.

In the early 1970s, a young Spanish woman and her German boyfriend were forced to move her mortally wounded mother from Germany to Galicia.

Maura was one of the first to leave the village. As she was a young widow, it was rumoured that she was a witch, so she decided to emigrate to Germany to work. Years later her daughter Iria followed in her footsteps. 1973. Maura works at the Opel factory; Iria looks after children and is learning German. The two get to know each other in Bochum. One afternoon Maura has an accident at work. When she receives the news, Iria is drinking with her German socialist boyfriend Hajo. Although she knows that her mother no longer wants to return to Spain, all the men around her consider it their duty to take her back. Without consulting them, Hajo offers to take them. As they travel with Maura seriously injured, Iria and Hajo become aware of their differences and confront their disparate social positions.

In conflict zones, violence can slowly cause a woman to lose her sense of struggle and become sick.

Lola Sar is a Galician architect dedicated to humanitarian co-operation projects related to the consequences of war conflicts. She lives in tension between doing and not being able to respond to a world in constant destruction. Exhausted, Lola travels non-stop between southern European countries, refugee camps and institutional meetings on humanitarian aid. With the discovery of Fariha's face in the media, a work colleague who has decided to cross Europe, she begins a desperate and obsessive journey to find her, knowing that she will never succeed. Devastated by the pain, Lola returns to Spain and is forced to begin a process of self-care. Her body manifests the implacable weight of history: a body exhausted, dispossessed, colonised and paralysed by the violence that Lola has endured.

Telmo was abandoned at the age of 8 in a hospital. He would spend 70 years in his room, from which he would only leave once to see the sea.

Telmo, now an old man, remembers his life. He remembers when, at the age of eight, he was abandoned at the hospital door, crippled and unable to speak. He remembers how Sister Lucia washed him and took care of him. How Dr. Montero treated him like a son. He remembers, above all, Xián, the friend who taught him to speak, to draw, to look out through the window... That window that is going to be his world. Because Telmo will spend his whole life inside that place and will only come out once... to see the sea. He spends his childhood with Xián, who tries to take him out into the courtyard, to see the seagulls and the sea he talked so much about, and the attempt ends in disaster. From that moment on, Telmo becomes terribly afraid of leaving the hospital.

As she battles against a wind farm project, Ana conquers a most precious inheritance: a new life on her own terms.

After years away, Ana returns to her village due to the death of her father in a fire at her family home. Her intention is to leave after the funeral and go back to the city, where she has her life all set, but she feels the unexpected need to stay, fueled by the intention of a power company to install a wind farm that divides the neighbours and affects her family's land. Ana's participation in this conflict gets her involved again in the life of the community and induces her to take over the family mechanics workshop, as well as to rebuild her parents' burnt down house. In this process, Ana questions her sense of belonging and identity, evokes a painful past and discovers in herself a collective and fighting spirit that she did not know she had.

The flow, the magic, the chance, the unsought and unintentional vertebrate the collected images. The record in its purest essence.

Recorded over more than ten years, the documentary Aurora begins as a portrait of the life of a Galician rural neighbour. Aurora and Area, close women from totally different worlds and with a great difference in age between them, establish a strong relationship of intimacy, trust and deep conversations about death, family, war and women. The camera is the third character in this permanent search where the gaze, like them, varies organically over time.

Protecting the wild horses is the only way to stay together, confronting them in the Rapa is the only way to preserve the village.

The Galician Mountain Horse breed is disappearing. Only a few wild horses resist harassed by cattle thieves, by wolves... and now by multinational power companies. The small village of Sabucedo preserves something unique: an ancestral and intimate bond with these wild horses. Once a year Sabucedo celebrates the Rapa das Bestas. Then 15.000 people come to see the atavistic tradition: the villagers confronting the horses hand to hand to cut their manes. But manes have no value anymore. Today the herds provide the only thing villagers have left to keep together: their identity. But every year there are fewer horses on the mountain and –like in a mirror– fewer people in the village.

Wild, Wild is a nature antidocumentary: it features wolves that look back at the camera, terrified, and humans that can howl.

'Can you smell that?' The camera goes deep into the forests of Galicia and the north of Portugal among whispers. We need to sharpen our senses to weave the signs left by wildlife. Wild, Wild tracks images and absences of Iberian wolves. The film navigates a relational history, laden with folk mythology, submission and extermination, and confronts an audiovisual history made of image-simulacrum of the natural wild. This film essay is a nature antidocumentary: it features wolves that look back at the camera, terrified, and humans that can howl. All of us creatures leave traces in this careful dance of tracked trackers.

The Andes will be the space-time of a new journey that we descendants of Fidel Roig Matóns will make in order to find out how he created his pictorial work.

The Catalan painter Fidel Roig Matóns, arrived in Mendoza at the beginning of the 20th century. Based in Cuyo, he went on long expeditions to the mountains. There he found the places where San Martín and his liberating army had passed by. He developed a pictorial work that he called Epic Landscape, seeking to unite landscape and history. The Andes will be the space-time of a new journey that his descendants take along with the memories played in voice-over by the actor Sergi López.

The epic adventure of an artist who lived, changed and died for his work.

Manfred Gnädinger was a complex man. To the tourists who visited the village of Camelle in A Coruña, he was an eccentric hermit who walked all year round in his loincloth, building his museum by the sea. The world of art considers him to be a unique multidisciplinary creator, and the older locals still remember the tall, suit-wearing young German who first set foot in the town in the 1960s. Gnädinger takes a retrospective look at his life and work from the German's subjective point of view, based on the ideas in his personal texts, with his voice recreated by AI and illustrated with archives and animation. The story takes the Costa da Morte as its main setting, until the fuel oil from the Prestige washes up on the coast and, in the process, Man's life and work.

Picasso, even geniuses have a first time.

There are still secrets in Picasso's life. But none as relevant as the picture he painted in A Coruña, the night the genius woke up. This film deals with Picasso's time in A Coruña in a way that has never been seen before. When the boy became a man and the apprentice became an artist.

Picasso is coruñés once again on the small screen. Maruja Campoviejo – LA VOZ DE GALICIA

How can you love someone you don't know? How much of who we are comes from images we don't have?

Bruno has long had a thorn in his side: he remembers almost nothing of one of the biggest influences in his life. His aunt Xela died when he was 5 years old and all that remains of her are the memories of other people. That is why, eighteen years later, Bruno decides to go through the faces and places where his aunt lived in order to shed light on this internal conflict through the first inheritance she left him: the creative impulse.

The story of how a generation of emigrants turned Ana Kiro into the great popular diva of Galician song.

Ana Kiro was the great pop icon of the Galician diaspora. An emigrant to Barcelona, after making her way into the music scene with the Belter label, she decided to try singing in Galician in 1976, and managed to sell more than 100,000 copies of her hit Galicia, terra meiga. Deceased in 2010, Ana Kiro forged her status as a popular diva in the 80s and 90s, touring venues all over Galicia, selling hundreds of thousands of discs and cassettes and performing in front of thousands of people in Europe and Latin America. Ana e mais nós is a celebration of her figure and her special relationship with the public. A cultural phenomenon that explains an entire society, with its shortcomings and contradictions. A film about the emotional power of the so-called 'light music' in a culture that is minoritised and marked by emigration.

Ernesto Romero, the dreamer who resists with a cinema in depopulated Galicia and corresponds with the child from Cinema Paradiso.

Ernesto Romero is Totò, the protagonist of Giuseppe Tornatore's Cinema Paradiso. But unlike him, instead of fleeing to the capital when he reached adulthood, at the age of 72 he still runs the small cinema in his hometown. In 2023, it was 40 years since the opening of the Novocine in Leiro, an adventure in which its owner poured his life, his passion and his ghosts. Ernesto Romero is like the dreamer Fitzcarraldo in Werner Herzog's film. He is a projectionist, but also a music lover, actor and amateur filmmaker. His house is a museum, a cabinet of curiosities. From the periphery, Ernesto Romero continues to lead his romantic project, screening films every day, trying to achieve the impossible.

Landscapes and testimonies of Franco's concentration camps in Spain.

Endless Prison takes a frontal and comprehensive look at the reality of Franco's concentration camps. Taking as its starting point the end of the Civil War in the port of Alicante, the feature film will travel around Spain showing the places where these spaces existed, putting them in conversation with the accounts of the day-to-day life of that imprisonment (mainly diaries, memoirs and letters of imprisoned men and women). Through the diversity of the stories and places shown, Endless Prison reflects on the main aspects of this dark episode of the early Franco regime.

We confront the past and the present of a rural community in search of what has disappeared and what remains.

My grandmother cannot read maps, but she can tell with her eyes closed how to get to any place in the village. She knows every road that leads to every mountain, meadow or cross, like the one where a woman drowned. Not so long ago, in this place people used to come together to feast, to work or to fight. I remember they used to eat together on feast days next to the church. Or dance in a stable, where they would improvise a stage. Tuna cans and old pots for instruments. They even tell how they kidnapped wild horses that ate their crops. Life in the village has changed. It doesn't seem to have anything to do with the tapes of 30 years ago. What has changed? What remains?

The mark of an artistic avant-garde making its way through Franco's dictatorship.

In the midst of the Spanish post-war period, a young architect recruited a multitude of artists to decorate the churches of an urban development project known as Franco's villages. What appeared to be a clear service to the Regime and the Catholic Church was, in reality, an unprecedented boost to Spanish abstract art and a form of counterculture. In 300 villages scattered throughout the Iberian Peninsula sleeps, forgotten and empty, a veritable museum of contemporary art of incalculable value.

It's all... a SET?

In the city of Anywhere, Arnold is a middle-aged mouse in an existential and relationship crisis. He spends his days watching cartoons of his childhood idol Ronald Duck, he's been unemployed for years, his relationship with Maria is sinking, and he's long felt that the world around them is fake...like a SET! After investigating what lies beyond the forest and losing his friends Ramiro (killed by a Giant Owl) and Pollo Crazy (unjustly arrested as an arsonist), Arnold begins to rebel against society and against ALMA (Almighty Limitless Megacorporative Agency), which controls the city. Meanwhile, Maria suffers a creative paralysis, tormented by the fairy Depression. Will they manage to be free?

A girl that everyone makes fun of will discover the power she has inside her thanks to the most unexpected ally: a pack of wolves.

Paula's simple and innocent life will be cut short by the bloody irruption of the wolves in her village. For her, that is only the beginning... Her dark childhood traumas come fiercely back to take their toll and she will find herself surrounded by soulless hunters, wild spirits and a race of wolves older than humankind. Forbidden love will reveal her most hidden instincts –will Paula be ready for her destiny?

Greta, a finger-licking feature film.

Planet Kapteyn B, dry, without electricity, without AIs, this is where Greta and her brother Xan live. Starvation is the norm, yet Greta wants to be a chef and has a cookbook with which she makes Xan drool by reading unrealistic recipes. Having run out of food, their aunt takes them to live with Cariba, an unusual woman who lives in a self-sufficient house overflowing with food. Greta is happy, she can finally cook! But Cariba locks Xan up for snooping where he shouldn't. Greta has to obey and work. Greta has to obey and work. Xan takes the opportunity to eat not knowing that Cariba plans to include him as the main ingredient in her menu. Greta takes to the cooker and with a heart bigger than her brother's appetite, gets Cariba to give up her plans.

Maite takes on a new case: a member of the Támoga family, well-known in Ferrol for running a major pharmaceutical company, has been kidnapped. The investigation leads Maite into the intricacies of a large family –the tensions, loyalties, and shadows she needs to decipher to find the kidnapper. Tomás, now living with Maite in a seaside-adapted house, has decided to request euthanasia. He has 15 days to reaffirm his decision. But in 15 days much can happen. An old friend, a shipowner from the shipyards of Ferrol whom Tomás has always admired for his labor activism, is somehow sucked into a murder case. Driven by the duty to prove his innocence –in which he blindly believes– Tomás gets involved in a dark plot that will once again make him question what justice really means. Relying on each other, Maite and Tomás solve two cases that, in some way, will help them close a chapter, perhaps the best stage of their lives, or at least the most intense. Now, all that's left for him is to bid farewell: to his family, his books, Tacho, and Maite.

Nina Weiss (35) is an inspector of the BKA spending a few days on the islands to visit her mother Margaret, a German expat on the Canary Islands. Actually, Nina was born in the Canary Islands but went to Germany as a child. Since her German mother moved back to Las Palmas she has come on frequent visits. When a citizen of German nationality is found dead, Nina is involved in the investigation together with Raúl Morales (38), the sergeant in charge. They soon discover that working together isn't easy, but they will have to collaborate. For her, observer of details, objects seem to reveal stories that go unnoticed by others. For him reading into people's intentions, attentive to what they don't say, comes as second nature. Despite the clash (or maybe because of that?), they work well as a tandem. They are two brilliant officers who won't stop until they discover the truth.

A CTV production for Televisión de Galicia (CRTVG)

First intergenerational comedy about the adaptation to online life of a Galician family made up of 3 generations: grandparents, children and grandchildren.

The Freire's are a close-knit family until they share a piece of news in the family Whatsapp group. The starting signal for all kinds of discussions. The eldest are the grandparents, Lolo and Carme, two retired people who comment on the news of the family group from their natural habitat: the living room of their home. The eldest son is Sindo, a divorced man who lives with Nerea, his teenage daughter and sentimental guru. The middle son is Benito, a frustrated orchestra singer who has become a taxi driver out of necessity. And the youngest daughter is Rosa, a small-time influencer who lives in London with her husband John. The Freires are like you and me, only they have a very short fuse and a very long tongue.

Sinking was never an option.

As a middleman between America and Europe, the loss of a shipment of fentanyl puts Fernando Barreira in the worst possible situation. Nando will thus embark on a race against time, not only to regain the credit he has lost in the eyes of those who trusted him, but also to elude the police who have been on his trail for months. A suicidal race in which preserving his prestige and freedom is the least important thing. The most important thing is to stay alive.

In The Envoys (S2), priests Pedro Salinas (Luis Gerardo Méndez) and Simón Antequera (Miguel Ángel Silvestre) travel to Porto da Lúa, a small fishing village located in Galicia, to determine the veracity of a new miracle. In the convent of the village, where three blind nuns live, one of them, Sister Corina, has had a revealing vision: Xiana, a girl who disappeared shortly after her birth 18 years ago, is alive and in good health in Canada. After the intervention of the Spanish and Canadian governments, it is confirmed that the girl is there and almost two decades after her abduction, the young girl returns to meet her parents and her true origins. Priests Salinas and Antequera will have to determine whether the nun's vision is due to divine intervention. So they get together with Sister Emilia, who is now fully integrated into their team. However, shortly after arriving at the village, a bloody crime takes place, and the envoys find themselves involved in a double investigation: one of a mystical-religious nature and the other much earthlier.

Martin Romero is an honorable judge in Seville, a man of unquestionable moral principles. When his son Alex is involved in an accident, Romero will have to make one of the hardest decisions in his life. Romero, understands fear motivated his son to flee from the dead victim, and he also knows Alex must go to the police. It's not an easy choice for Romero, he would do anything in his hand to avoid his son's suffering, but the right thing must be done. The problem is that the victim is Hugo Aguilar, Vicente Aguilar's youngest son, one of the most dangerous men in Seville. Fearing for his son's life, Romero decides to erase any trace of the accident and lie about what happened, beginning a journey that will put his son's protection above everything and everyone.

Alba is spending the summer at her aunt Helena's. In her mind, her father's town is a dark, cold, and boring place. She's a bit nervous because she really hasn't spent much time with her aunt. She expects the summer to be a bore, but she couldn't have been more wrong. Alba arrives at Rodas as the preparations for Saint John's bonfires kick off. Alone in an unfamiliar town, her aunt asks her to go to the shop to pick up something for dinner. On the way, Alba is the victim of a prank. The Moure brothers are on the watch for newcomers. Lucas, the mayor's son and Sali, team up with her. Together they will stand up against the Moure in the first of many adventures to come... For the Argonauts this summer in Rodas will be the best one in their lives.

HISTORIAS DE AQUÍ

RELEASED Q1 2024

A Voz Audiovisual production for Televisión de Galicia (CRTVG)

The great stories that marked the history of Galicia told in a different way.

Stories from Galicia is a docufiction that fuses documentary and fiction to offer a unique perspective on events, characters and milestones that left an indelible mark on the collective memory of the Galician people. In each case, the voices of the experts and protagonists are linked to a fiction that complements them and gives them a different approach. Tragic stories are told, such as the Montrove plane crash or the sinking of the Aegean Sea, but also unrepeatable events such as the discovery of medieval rings with supposedly miraculous powers. Stories from Galicia is an immersive journey back in time to events that remain in the memory of Galician society and invites us to question, reflect and discover a new appreciation of the events that marked it.

A country's crimes are a reflection of its society, the character of its citizens and the social problems they have to address.

Maintaining the same spirit of a criminal anthology that serves to clarify what happened in each of the cases and with a clear preventive and social component, this new series of six episodes will once again take us to different autonomous communities to focus on revenge, crimes committed by children against their parents, organised crime and one of the most feared types of murderers: serial killers. Journalists, psychiatrists and forensic doctors will analyse their behaviour and modus operandi, trying to find points in common between each case. Episodes will be complemented by the experiences of family members or close friends of the victims and the aggressors. Archival footage and interviews will shape these stories that will shed light on the criminals and their crimes.

Based on a true story.

A community of fishermen fish for clams illegally in the Tagus River, where the danger and the chances of dying go hand in hand with the high profits it generates. A business that reaches as far as Spain, in which a network of illegal immigrants takes part and which ends up intersecting with drug trafficking. A game of cat and mouse, where smuggling will come up against the growing opposition of the police authorities' investigations.
